Welcome to Our 75th Annual Meeting

Welcome to MSS2012! The Year of the Dragon is auspicious for Midwest Sociological Society. In 2012 we mark the 75th anniversary of our first annual meeting with a variety of commemorative activities culminating with a birthday celebration and reception following Mary Zimmerman's presidential address: "Theorizing Inequality: Comparative Policy Regimes and Everyday Lives" (#107). MSS2012 is auspicious, too, because we are in Minneapolis, a spectacular global city, to explore the theme "Sociological Understandings of the Global Transformation." Our program offers a sociological journey around the globe through a myriad of intellectually stimulating sessions and exciting activities, including tours highlighting Minneapolis' global connections. In addition to the global theme, you will find topics and events to satisfy virtually all sociological interests. MSS is known for its camaraderie. Opportunities abound to network, to newly connect, and to re-connect. Thursday's Trivia Night, for example, will be fun, social, communal, and sociologically stimulating. Taking advantage of almost 250 offerings energizes our professional and personal lives. Explore the program and plan your time to maximize meeting benefits. Note just a few highlights here:

- Irwin Deutscher's keynote address briefly titled "Toward a Sociology of Sociology... The Case of Intergroup Violence around the World" (#78).
- Plenary on "Global Crises After the Meltdown," moderated by Lauren Langman, exploring issues of global capitalism with Rose Brewer and Bob Antonio (#51).
- Many global sessions, including "Social Inequality in China in the Era of Globalization" (#1); "Global Change and Development" (#20); "Immigration in the Era of Globalization" (#82); "Globalization and Social Exclusion" (#39); "Globalization and Its Discontents" (#87), "Immigration and Translocal/Global Changes and Identities" (#102); and "Global Social Issues" (#165).
- Thematic teaching workshops on "What Makes Teaching and Learning 'Global?'" by Diane Pike (#48) and "Plagiarism in the Multicultural Classroom: Implications for Teaching and Learning" by Carol Jenkins (#100).
- Publishing-related sessions, including Nancy Greenwood's on "Publishing Textbooks Today" (#72) and Steve Buechler's on "How to Get Your Book Published" (#202).
- ASA Executive Officer Sally Hillsman's sessions on "Sociology Matters: Making Sociology More Visible" (#68), and "What You Should Know about Your Campus IRB" (#132).
- Numerous teaching, professional development, career, and applied sociology sessions for students, faculty, and non-academic sociologists. See, for example, "Syllabi Design: Tricks of the Trade" (#30); "My Parents Want to Know: What Do Sociologists Do?" (#167); and "Advice on Teaching: From One Graduate Student to Another" (#182).

Many thanks go to my program committee, to Vicky Herbel for organizing Trivia Night, to Sue Smith-Cunnien for her demanding role as Local Arrangements Chair, to Brad Smith who patiently shepherded us through MeetingSavvy, and to Executive Director Lauren Tiffany for keeping us on task and on track graciously under many challenging conditions. Much appreciation goes to Priya Dua, Assistant Program Chair, Student Director, and newly minted Ph.D., whose dedication, organizational skills, attention to detail, and thoughtful, appropriate responses to everyone's needs were essential for the success of MSS2012.

Have an enjoyable, rewarding experience in Minneapolis!

Linda Lindsey

This book is for instructors who want to make theory relevant for their students. Social Theory Re-Wired combines the structure of a print reader with the flexibility of an interactive website. Whether students have come to the study of social theory with enthusiasm or trepidation, this interactive text will guide them through the webs and networks of social theory from its classic halcyon days to the vibrant and complex world of now.

The editors have organized the 38 readings in this text by theme, as well as theorist and tradition so that instructors can structure their course the way they wish. Twelve additional readings from such theorists as Theodor Adorno, Judith Butler, Patricia Hill Collins, Anthony Giddens, and Michel Foucault are available on the website. The rich collection of web-based materials helps apply theorists' ideas to today's world and make the theory readings themselves more vibrant, less dense, and more applicable to today's students.

PUBLISH YOUR RESEARCH with The Edwin Mellen Press

We are a non-subsidy publisher of books that contribute new information, argument, or methods to sociology.

We accept proposals in all of the established topic areas: military sociology, sociology of religion, political sociology, sociology of education, sociology of medicine, and gender, immigration, race and ethnic studies.

We would like to develop a series of sociological studies of the rural-towns and the “little-towns” of America. (These are towns with populations under 10,000 people.)

We invite you to write a monograph on a “little-town” near you. We would also be happy to publish a collaborative book. Such a research project might be of interest to an entire class of your college students.

Our editor is attending this conference. He would like to discuss your own research interests with you.

You may speak with our editor, Professor Herbert Richardson, at our book display in the exhibitor’s room or you may phone him on his cell at: 1-716-535-7497.
